AB gives Marvin funding recommendations

by Becky Suprenant

An Apportionment Board ad hoc committee has recommended to Eastern President Daniel E. Marvin a referendum questioning which organizations receive funding and providing that the AB have final say in which groups should receive funding.

The committee also recommended that before an activity receives funding, it must prove it provides a significant service or entertainment to students.

The AB would also not have the right to eliminate a group, from receiving funding, but could change the amount of its funds.

The final draft of a report detailing the functions of the Apportionment Board was sent to Eastern President Daniel E. Marvin Dec. 2, and is awaiting his response, Todd Daniels, student body financial vice president, said Wednesday.

Marvin sent a memorandum to the AB in July requesting that a committee, after considering different processes of the board and how AB interacts with other boards, make recommendations concerning these matters.

In his memo, Marvin questioned the process a group goes through when requesting funds.

The recommendation of conducting a referendum would tell whether students wanted a particular organization, Daniels added.

One of Marvin's concerns stated in the memo was the AB's vote last year to cut the Model United Nations and the Vehicle's funding, Daniels said. The Student Senate overturned the AB's decision and the result was that Marvin apportioned money from AB to these two groups, Daniels added.

"To try to eliminate this problem, the committee recommended AB have the final student say so in funding," he said.

Marvin also questioned in his memo how a group or organization requesting funds from the AB was judged as academic or non-academic.

"Groups which are academic are not funded by the AB," Daniels said.

"The committee recommended that for an activity to receive funding, it must prove to be a significant service or entertainment to the students," he said.

"This will be judged by the number of students the organization directly affects and if it is not academic in nature," Daniels added.

Finally, Marvin also questioned if the AB should decide which programs should receive funding or if it should only determine the allocation of available funds to already approved programs.

BOG backs Owens for post Until replacement for dean found

by Lola Burnham

Barbara Owens, assistant dean of Eastern's School of Home Economics, was approved as acting dean of the school at the Board of Governors meeting Thursday.

The BOG met at Northeastern Illinois University in Chicago.

Eastern President Daniel E. Marvin said Owens will begin her duties Jan. 1 and will serve until a "permanent replacement can be found."

A search committee was formed at the beginning of the semester to find a qualified candidate to fill the position, which opened up after Mary Ruth Swope announced her retirement in September.

Owens could become a candidate for the permanent position of dean if the BOG approves a recommendation by board Executive Director Donald Walters which would change the policy concerning the appointments of permanent deans, vice presidents and presidents.

If the board approves the change, persons serving as acting administrators could apply for the permanent position.

Currently the BOG policy states that acting deans, vice presidents and presidents can not be candidates for the permanent position.

In his report Walters said, "This conclusion (to change the policy) reflects a recognition by the board that there may be significant advantages to be gained by changing its practice in this area."

These advantages include "enhancement of the quality of applicants for key positions at the university, strengthening of efficiency and morale at the top levels of campus administration and elimination of barriers to the achievement of affirmative action goals," Walters said.

Marvin said although the board did not take action on Walters' recommendation, the "general consensus" agreed with Walters.

Marvin said the board approved all recommendations of the presidents of the five BOG universities.

These universities include Chicago State, Eastern, Governor's State, Northeastern Illinois and Western Illinois.

The BOG approved expenditures totalling $89,415 for equipment at Eastern.

The largest expenditure is $42,670 for five physiographs for use in physiology courses and in research projects.

A physiograph is an instrument that measures and records various responses of a subject to test conditions. The responses the

Yearbook problem stalled by AB allocation

by Becky Suprenant

The Publications Board was allocated an additional fee support of $1,200 by the Apportionment Board Thursday night to buy 300 more yearbooks to remedy the possible problem of not having enough 1981 yearbooks for students.

David Reed, adviser to student publications, said at the meeting that last year's budget was designed to provide 6,200 yearbooks, the amount printed in previous years.

In the spring of 1980, approximately 6,235 books were distributed, Reed said. However, 150 to 200 students who were entitled to them did not receive them, he said.

"There weren't enough to go around," he said.

"The Warbler is estimating that 6,500 books will be enough, but there is no way we can make an accurate guess of how many to print," Reed said.

"Warbler could still fall short in printing books or we could print too many; there is no way of knowing," he said. Reed said the printing company must know the amount of books to be printed by mid-December.

Reed indicated two possible solutions to the yearbook problem.

If students would report whether they wanted the yearbook in the fall, the Warbler would only print the amount of books requested by the students, he said.

Even though a student did not say he wanted a book in the fall, he could say he previously paid for the book through his student fees. Therefore, he should still receive a yearbook, he said.

Another remedy to the situation would be a possible registration fee system, which must be looked into further, Reed said.

In other business, senior Mike Petrus, representative for the Eastern cheerleaders, asked the AB to allot them $4,000 to pay their transportation to Albuquerque, N.M., if the Panthers should win their semifinal playoff game against North Alabama Saturday.

At $250 for each plane ticket, it would cost $4,000 to send the entire squad, Petrus said. The cheerleaders spoke to Athletic Director R.C. Johnson who suggested they present their case to the AB, he said.

Polish committeeman states Soviet assistance possible

WARSAW, Poland—A member of the Polish Central Committee raised for the first time today the possibility of a Polish request for Soviet assistance in the Polish crisis.

Josef Klasa, head of the Central Committee department for relations with the media, said at a news conference that the Polish leadership would ask for Soviet assistance if authority "slipped into the hands of anti-socialist elements." He said a call for assistance would be made only if "socialism became endangered."

State Legislature overrides veto on nuclear waste ban

SPRINGFIELD—The Illinois Legislature has voted to ban imports of spent nuclear fuel from commercial power plants in states that will not take such high-level radioactive waste produced in Illinois.

The ban, approved Wednesday over Gov. James Thompson's veto, would halt shipments of the waste from a California nuclear power plant to General Electric Co.'s Morris site, 55 miles southwest of Chicago.

A GE spokesman said he expected Southern California Edison Co. to challenge the ban. The Morris site is the only one in the nation accepting high-level commercial nuclear waste for temporary storage.

Justice Dept. allows FBI informants to commit crime

The Justice Department issued guidelines Thursday for FBI investigations which would in some cases allow informants to participate in crimes and would widen the bureau's authority to follow and photograph certain Americans.

The guidelines were issued by Attorney General Benjamin Civiletti, who told a new conference at FBI headquarters that they pull together policies and practices which previously had been scattered in various government manuals and policy statements but had never been presented in such detail in one place.

Flash electrical fire kills 26, injures 40 in N.Y. hotel

WHITE PLAINS, N.Y.—An electrical fire flashed through the conference rooms of a suburban inn Thursday, killing 26 people and injuring 40. Authorities said the area where the fire spread was not equipped with sprinklers.

"It appears it flashed up suddenly and these people didn't have a chance," said Purchase Fire Chief Robert Makowski at the scene of the fire at Stouffer's Inn of Westchester, about 20 miles north of mid-Manhattan.

Westchester County Executive Alfred DelBello said there was computer equipment in the room where the fire started, but he said there was "no foundation" to reports that the fire may have been caused by an explosion of that equipment.

Seven of the bodies were found in a closet, which the victims apparently mistook for an exit, and three were found behind a Christmas tree near an emergency door whose deadbolt apparently failed to open.

Couples seeking quality in relationships—Potter

UB seeks AB funding to better bookings

by Peggy McMeen

Couples today are looking for quality relationships more than in past generations, Jessie Potter, human sexuality educator and marriage counselor, said Thursday during intimacy-communication workshops conducted at Eastern.

"Other generations didn't have as much privacy or as much time spent in married life because they didn't live as long," she said, "and therefore didn't have as much yearning for good relationships. Marriages appeared better then because people died earlier."

She said the problem with acquiring a quality relationship between two or more people is that men and women don't have a common language to communicate because of their upbringing.

"It is as if they are raised in two separate worlds," she said.

Men, therefore tend to talk and interrupt more in conversation with a woman, while women often say "you know" 10 times as much as men to hold a man's interest, she said.

"The message received is far more important than the message sent," Potter said. "Most couples think good communication depends on the number of words exchanged instead of the messages transmitted."

Potter said children are taught not to touch and not to ask for what they want, which they remember when they are adults. She said society was "touch-deprived," because children are raised "as if their hands were tied behind them."

"Boys are taught to be independent while girls are raised as passive and dependent," Potter said.

Couples therefore, have a high level of expectation for their relationships while they still follow old-fashioned models. Potter said to achieve good communication people must learn to talk about themselves although they were taught as children never to call attention to themselves.

The University Board Concert Research and Development Committee said Thursday night that it plans to ask the Apportionment Board for a working budget for booking concerts in the near future.

Booker Suggs, assistant student activities director, said Eastern is the only state university in Illinois which attempts to offer a major concert program on a "zero budget."

A zero budget, Suggs said, is a budget which contains no funds but rather is supplied by money generated by ticket sales.

Vicki Finn, UB concert committee coordinator, said poor ticket sales were the reason the Dec. 2 Outlaws and last year's South Side Johnny and the Ashbury Jukes concerts had to be canceled.

Suggs said the committee will be conducting a comprehensive survey of the student body and will present the results to the AB in hopes of gaining student funding for booking future concerts.

"We are going to try to persuade the board that the zero budget the concert committee operates under is no longer feasible," Suggs said.

Finn said with the current committee budget, concerts are booked mainly through promoters. The promoters contact Eastern with a list of which groups will be in the area on the date the committee sets for a concert, and pays the university $500 to promote the group.

Finn said a greater variety of acts could be obtained through a booking agent, who finds the acts but receives a percentage for his services.

Finn said the committee's budget situation is probably the main reason why no major acts are booked at Eastern, but she said there are several other reasons for the problem.

Production problems involving the size and seating capacity of the Lantz Building where concerts are held is a problem, she said. Also, Lantz is not equipped for some of the set-ups required for bands, she said.

"For example, just one of the problems is that Lantz isn't equipped to 'fly sound,' or provide speakers suspended from the ceiling," Finn said.

Another problem is that some acts will not play to a house smaller than 10,000 seats, Finn said.

Lantz seats 5,000 at the "absolute maximum," she said.

It was in light of these problems that the Reaserch and Development Committee was formed this semester as a sub-entity of the UB concert committee.

Finn said this committee is involving students from such areas as marketing, finance, statistics and business communications to work on researching student opinion for the concert program at Eastern.

ISA meeting needs your input

We encourage Eastern students to take advantage of an opportunity to express their opinions on current issues by attending the Illinois Student Association conference when it meets on campus tomorrow.

The ISA is an organization of students from Illinois universities and junior colleges who meet to discuss current issues on their campuses.

This month, the ISA plans to discuss the controversial Students Coordinating Optional Referendum Efforts (SCORE) issue, which was passed by Eastern students in the Nov. 12 referendum. In addition to the SCORE issue, the ISA will discuss the re-appropriation of Illinois State Scholarship Commission monies and an emergency bill requesting additional funds for the ISSC which will be introduced in the Illinois General Assembly.

Thus, Saturday's ISA session offers an excellent opportunity for Eastern students to voice their opinions on SCORE, either by offering to present a similar proposal at other schools or by discouraging other schools from accepting it.

Also, the ISSC may be denied additional funds from the Illinois General Assembly this year, and many students will be affected by this loss of funding. By attending the ISA meeting, these students can give input and encourage an organization composed of students like themselves to take action toward the legislature. Also, students may receive advice on how they can help lobby the legislature for additional funds.

Finally, the ISA will discuss the possibilities of getting a voting student member on the Board of Governors as currently student BOG members are advisory and do not have a vote.

Having a voting student member on the BOG is yet another way students can express their opinions.

Because Eastern is serving as host for the ISA meeting, Eastern students should attend to show other student representatives that our student body is concerned and involved with current issues on campus.

Twelve to 15 schools are expected to attend the conference. We welcome all students to Eastern and encourage them to have a profitable conference.

Alms should open up on snow job

The silence surrounding the O'Brien Stadium snow-clearing incident should end so that future snow-clearing procedures can be improved.

Most Eastern football fans are probably familiar with the snow removal story by now.

Eight inches of snow fell in Charleston Thanksgiving morning. Physical Plant personnel told Athletic Director R.C. Johnson that they would begin removing the snow at 6 a.m. Friday. When Johnson arrived at 8 a.m., O'Brien Stadium's sprinklers were turned on. Johnson had the sprinklers turned off and the field plowed, leaving Eastern with a muddy turf for its 21-14 playoff win over Northern Colorado last Saturday.

An NCAA committee then decided that because of muddy field conditions, the Panthers will not host the semi-final playoff game against the University of North Alabama Saturday.

It is too easy in hindsight to criticize Johnson and the Physical Plant personnel who may have contributed to making Eastern's football field into what University of Northern Colorado head coach Bob Blasi called "a quagmire." So I won't do that.

The fact that Physical Plant personnel refused to talk about the field-clearing procedure is my basis for criticism.

Physical Plant Director Everett Alms will not comment on the watering of the field or on the method used to clear

Behind the byline:

Andy Savoie

it, even though he was in Milwaukee, Wis. at the time. He also told me that he has ordered all of his workers to keep quiet.

I believe that this attitude is counter-productive, because it only heightens the uncertainty surrounding the field-clearing.

Consequently, ways to improve snow removal in the future may be made secondary to accusations, rumors and finger-pointing about who is responsible for the field's current condition. Alms is only hurting himself and his staff by keeping quiet.

Placing the blame for this incident is not important. But it is important that we understand what went wrong and develop procedures to prevent it from happening again.

If mistakes were made in the clearing of the field, it makes sense to discuss why and how they were made rather than cover them up.

I suggest that Alms start talking about what his workers did at O'Brien Stadium last Friday, so that those actions may be assessed in the planning of future snow-clearing procedures.

Your Turn

Forget it, Panthers

Editor:

So Darrell Mudra complained about the condition of the football field! So what? Trivial, trivial!

Now, for something monumental about Mudra. And I don't mean his taking a raggle-taggle team and making it a champion. Let me quote a paragraph from the School of Education's PACT which comments on his article, "A Humanist Looks at Coaching," published in the October issue of Journal of Physical Education and Recreation:

"In refreshing contrast to the current emphasis on winning that prompts some coaches of Peewee football players to 'Kill! Kill! Kill!' (as detailed on an Oct. 24 ABC television program), Mudra says, 'I have found that when the focus is taken off winning, the chances of winning go way up.' The humanistic coach feels that love for a competitor 'will stimulate a level of excellence far superior to that which can be achieved out of hate. Defeating someone you respect always means more than defeating someone you do not regard highly.... The compassionate player may be completely repulsed by the 'kill, kill' attitudes or the dehumanization a coach may seem to endorse.'"

How refreshing to hear such statements from a successful jock! How great to read the opposite of the John Wayne-Clint Eastwood philosophy dealing with opponents: either kill 'em or beat the crap out of 'em.

Let us hope that Mudra's attitude about competition will permeate the physical education area so that his colleagues will have second thoughts about the Panthers dripping blood in Lantz Gym. A few years back it was embarrassing and incongruous to sit listening to one of the greatest symphony orchestras in the world playing some of the world's greatest music while above the audience a panther was dripping blood from its fangs.

Darrell Mudra, I don't know you, but you are on my Lincoln Continental gift list—you may give me one at any time!

To blame is a shame

Editor:

Who wrecked the football field is the major topic this week. Was it the bands with their thousands of tiny marching feet? Maybe it was the plows that dug, tore and ate the grass or the water that was used to make the snow come to pass?

We could have done this; we could have done that; but now it's too late, so why keep passing the hat?

Let's just blame Mother Nature for her early snow storm and quit our finger-pointing—let's go to Alabama where it's warm!

CAA tables community option for Health Ed

by Marc Pacatte

The Council on Academic Affairs tabled action on the proposed community health option for health education majors after approving only two of the four new courses presented. The council turned down one of the courses, health 2025 "Introduction to Medical Terminology," after Leonard Durham, of the life sciences department, told the council that students would get more experience by taking zoology 2999, "Human Physiology."

CAA member David Buchanan said he is opposed to a terminology course in any discipline, because students benefit more from using the terms rather than just learning the terms. The Council passed health 3560, "New Dimensions in Women's Health Care;" and 3700, "Prescriptions (Rx): Education in Health Care Setting;" but tabled action on 3765, "Principles of Epidemiology." The course was tabled because the health education department did not follow the CAA's format for course requests. Since the epidemiology course was tabled, no action could be taken on the community health option. The council also approved reducing the level of an English course, English 5007, "Studies in Literary Criticism," to be numbered 4775. The number change was requested, James Quivey, chairman of the English department, said because the English department is reducing the number of 5000 level courses by eliminating some courses, but this course was a "valuable" one, so "we wanted to keep it." Sam Taber, dean of student academic services, spoke to the CAA about the academic calendar after concern about the length of semesters was brought up at a recent CAA meeting. Taber said fall semesters have been consistent in the number of days, but spring semesters have been cut short due to the girls' and boys' state track meets conflicting with the end of the semester.

Legal service resolution passed

by Cathy Crist

A resolution to make part-time students pay for the student legal services was passed Thursday at a Legal Services Governing Board meeting. "When the original referendum to have the legal services was passed last year, it was with the intention of including all students," board member Bonnie Bijak said. "But when it got to the administration, it didn't go that way." Student Body Collective Bargaining Representative Tom Lamczyk said because the part-time students are not paying for the services, they technically cannot take advantage of them. "We think all students should be able to use the services," he said. Legal Services attorney Steve Davis said, "The part-time students also have a number of legal problems. Even though they have not paid the fees, I have been trying to help them anyway. "There is only so much I can do though; it's kind of a dilemma," Davis said. "But if the resolution passes there will be a sharing of the fees, and all the students can take advantage of the service." Lamczyk said the resolution was written up and will be examined by Vice President for Student Affairs Glenn Williams and Union Area Head Bill Clark. The general report of the services is good, Lamczyk said. "I think it is excellent. An average of four to five students come in every day." Bijak said, "It was a little slow before Thanksgiving, but Davis thinks it will pick up when the new leases come out." Also at the meeting, it was announced that new law interns will be working at the legal services next semester. None have yet been named.

Native European, Oriental and Asian items and Christmas decorations will be displayed in Coleman Hall's International Lounge through Christmas, international student adviser Brigitte Chen said. The display includes articles of clothing, native jewelry, dinnerware, and Christmas decorations from Europe, Japan, the People's Republic of China, Ghana, and the Phillippines, Chen said. The items were donated to the exhibit by a group of international students who brought them from home, Chen said.

Mass transit report due by semester's end

by Laura Henry

The mass transit fact-finding committee will present its findings to Eastern President Daniel E. Marvin by the end of the semester, Robert Meier, chairman of the committee, said Wednesday.

"We have not yet completed the report, but we will present our finished report to President Marvin sometime during finals week," Meier said.

When Marvin established the committee at the start of the semester, he said he hoped the committee could present its data before the end of the semester.

Meier said the information-gathering process is taking a considerable amount of time for the committee.

"Gathering what we need from our various sources takes a long time, but I wouldn't say that we won't get our report in on time," Meier said.

Marvin said Thursday that if the committee cannot present its materials to him before the end of the semester, he will extend his deadline.

However, earlier Marvin said he did not want the work to "drag out for a year and a half."

Marvin said he formed the fact-finding committee to compile facts in order that the university could make educated decisions about Eastern's transportation needs.

"It seems that a better recommendation can be made if that decision is based on data instead of some pre-conceived idea," Marvin said earlier.

A transit system was approved by a 52 percent margin in a non-binding student referendum last year, but Marvin vetoed the proposal in September.

At that time, Marvin said he vetoed the proposal because he felt not enough research had been done since the proposal's success was projected based on the observation of only one institution—Northern Illinois.

In an effort to broaden the scope of information about the mass transit system, Meier said the committee has contacted more sources.

"We have been contacting the bus company operating at Northern, American Transit Corporation, and have a report from NIU. Also, we have contacted other campuses employing this type of transit system in the central United States," Meier said.

coach said after the loss to ISU-E. "You can lose your confidence when you're in a close game, and I have a feeling we're going to be in a lot of close games this year."

On paper, Ferris State does not appear to be as much of a problem for the Panthers as their past two foes were.

The Grand Rapids, Mich. school, which was 13-13 last year, was 1-1 this season before meeting Evansville University Thursday night.

The Bulldogs ripped Dyke College 88-60 in their opener before falling to Ball State 96-63.

"They don't have the laurels from the past season like the past two teams we played, but I know that they have some pretty good people," Samuels said. "They get some of the players that can't go to schools like Michigan or Michigan State because of grades."

Leading Ferris State in its first two contests was 6-foot-2 senior guard Rick Baillergeon, who had 16 and 19 point games with 57 percent shooting from the field.

Junior 6-foot-8 center Mark Leighton averaged 11.5 points and 11 rebounds in Ferris State's first two games.

The Bulldogs' other probable starters are 6-foot-7 Tom Lesko and 6-foot-6 David Swilley at forwards and 6-foot-5 Gerald Busby at the other guard spot.

Samuels is expecting to have 6-foot-6 Jim Williams back in the starting lineup after the junior forward saw limited action against ISU-E because of the flu.

The rest of Eastern's lineup will probably remain the same with Ricky Robinson and Rick Serkin joining Williams on the front line and Warren Patten and Chuck Turk manning the backcourt.

Patten has led the Panthers with 22, 16 and 11 point games for a 16.3 point-per-game scoring average so far this season while shooting 63.6 percent from the field.

Robinson is averaging 13.3 points, Turk 8.7, Williams 7.0 and Serkin, Rico Ellis and Leigh Hankins 6.0 each.

Serkin leads the team in rebounding with a 5.3 norm.

The Panthers will be without reserve swing man Eddie Jones, who broke his arm in the ISU-E game. He will probably be out until sometime after Christmas, Samuels said.

Samuels said this week he has stressed ways to prevent a late collapse like the one that let ISU-E score 13 straight points and overtake the Panthers in the final minutes.

thinks his squad will fare much better in Alabama.

"We think our offense can get in gear on an excellent field," the Panther mentor said. "Our players have really come together of late. We're a much more spirited group."

Eastern flanker Scott McGhee and strong safety Don Pittman agree with Mudra.

"We're a much closer team," McGhee said. "Everyone respects the other for their own abilities and things are really starting to click. But one thing's for sure, we're going to have to come out a lot meaner this weekend than last Saturday."

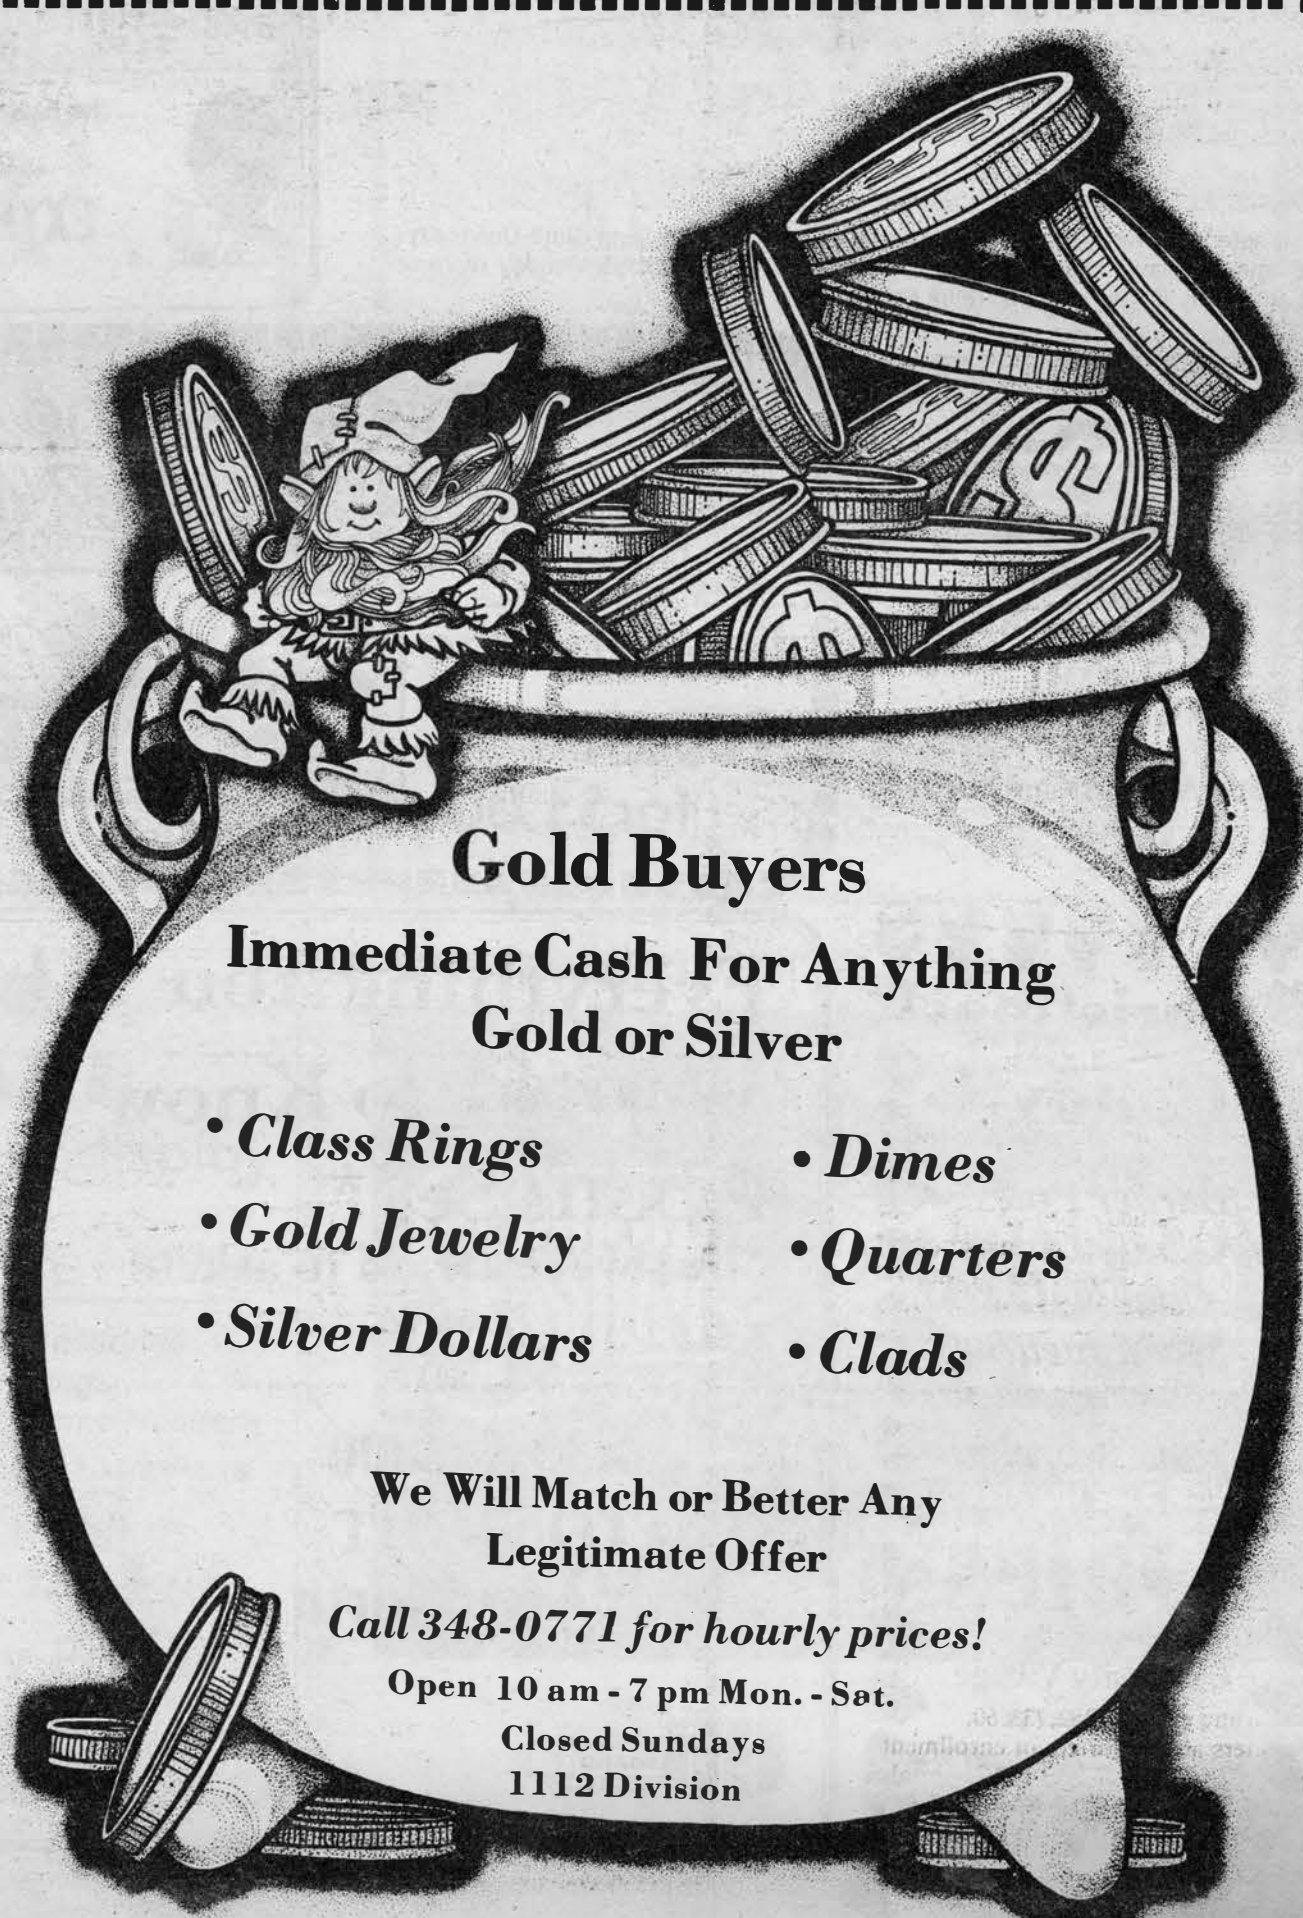

"I'm starting to get a little nervous about Saturday," Pittman said. "But once I get on the field and the action starts, I'll be O.K."

Cagers hope to overcome late game collapse

by Brian Nielsen

Eastern's basketball team will try to kick the close-but-no-cigar habit when it hosts Ferris State at 7:30 p.m. Saturday at Lantz Gym.

The Panthers, now 1-2, are hoping to get back on the winning track after losing their past two games by a total of three points.

NCAA Division II power Central

Missouri held off the Panthers 70-69 last Saturday and then highly-regarded Indiana State-Evansville scored a come-from-behind 72-70 win over Eastern Monday night.

Panther coach Rick Samuels said such a trend could put his team in a rut.

"It can become habit-forming," the (See CAGERS, Page 11)

Grapplers are geared up for weekend tournament

by Steve Binder

As a result of the Eastern wrestler's 35-12 thumping of Purdue University Wednesday night, Panther coach Ron Clinton said his grapplers will be "sky high" for the first Illinois Intecollegiate Tournament Friday and Saturday at Illinois.

About 20 Illinois schools will participate in the tournament, including such powerhouses as Northern, Northwestern, Western, Southern Illinois University-Edwardsville, SIU-Carbondale and the University of Illinois, Clinton said.

"Collectively it (the Purdue meet) has got them sailing. They're fired up and ready to go," Clinton said.

Because the Panthers blitzed Purdue, Clinton said the team energy gained will be flowing strong through each of his wrestlers in the tournament.

Even the wrestlers who did not compete against Purdue will be more psyched up for the tournament because of the team energy generated Wednesday night.

"They ride off that energy a little bit. They have a source of pride and acknowledgment they didn't have before the meet," Clinton said.

Thus, if the Purdue meet had not been held before the Illinois Intercollegiates, that team energy "would of been a little flatter," Clinton said.

Although Clinton's squad is mentally ready, he does not consider the tournament too important.

"I would like to make a good showing but I don't use the tournament as a peaking point," Clinton said.

"It's a fun tournament, but at the same time it's a competitive tournament. We like to combine success with competition," Clinton added.

Gridders ready for North Alabama in semis*Panther's pass
vs. 'Bama's run

by Dave Claypool

It will be the ultimate of contrasts in style—the aerial show versus the ground game.

Eastern, with one of the most explosive passing games in college football, averaging 247 yards through the air, against the University of North Alabama, which ground out 244 running yards per game this season.

The NCAA Division II semi-final playoff game will begin at 11:25 a.m. in Florence, Ala.

The contest, which will be televised on WAND-TV, Channel 17 Decatur, is viewed by Eastern head coach Darrell Mudra as a game that has the potential of being a good test for the No. 1-ranked Panthers.

"North Alabama has had a great year," Mudra said. "Coach (Wayne) Grubb has come in and in a short time turned this team into a real power in Division II."

North Alabama has compiled an impressive 10-1 record this season and has defeated such well-respected teams as Troy State and Jacksonville State, two schools which were ranked in Division II's top 10 this season.

North Alabama is also coming off a convincing 17-8 win over Virginia Union in its first-round playoff game last Saturday.

"They have a good team, but we're not about to get nervous about it. We respect, not fear people, and the fact that we're in the playoffs doesn't make us twitch," defensive coordinator Chuck Dickerson said. "All I know is that they are at least No. 4 in the nation and we're definitely No. 1."

Perhaps Eastern's biggest obstacle in keeping Dickerson's statement true will be UNA tailback Lawson Fletcher.

Fletcher, who has picked up 889 yards for a 74.8 yard-per-game average, is well-respected by Eastern's coaches.

"They have a great tailback in Fletcher," Mudra said. "He's a burner."

Dickerson agrees.

"He's a top-notch back," the coach said. "We know we have our work cut out for us, but once we start beating on him, I don't think he'll be all that effective."

"We're going to play a heavy key game on their tailback," Dickerson added. "We're going to hit him a lot, hard and frequently."

Leading the way for the Panther defense against the Lions' running game will be Mid-Continent Conference standouts Kevin Gray and Pete Catan.

Gray was named the MCC's top defensive back, while Catan was tabbed the conference's best defensive lineman and also a Kodak First-Team All-American.

"As always, we're going to blitz the hell out of them," Dickerson said. "But we'll also have to keep an eye on their split end."

The Lion's split end is Jerry Hill, who has gained nearly 400 yards in receptions.

While Eastern's defense may appear to have a two-man offense to stop, its offense is hoping to get back on the scoring track after scoring 21 points to Northern Colorado's 14 last week.

Although most teams would be happy with a 21-point output, Mudra (See GRIDDERs, Page 11)

Defense to call its own plays

by Dave Claypool

Eastern's middle linebackers will be allowed to call defensive signals for the first time this season when the Panthers battle North Alabama in their NCAA Division II semi-final playoff game Saturday.

"We're going to give this game to the defense," Panther defensive coordinator Chuck Dickerson said. "We're going to let Alonzo Lee and Bill Mines (Eastern's two middle linebackers) make the calls."

Eastern's highly regarded defensive coach may be putting Saturday's crucial game into the hands of his players, but he's not going to be idle on the sidelines of Braly Stadium in Florence, Ala.

"My assistants and I have set up some guidelines, so it won't be like we'll have no say."

In the past, Dickerson and secondary assistant Rick Schachner have relayed the defensive stunts and coverages to their players.

But in Saturday's showdown for a trip to Albuquerque, N.M., to battle for the national championship, it will be left to Eastern's middle linebackers to call the defensive signals.

"When I first arrived here at Eastern, Coach (Darrell) Mudra gave me complete autonomy of the defense and I love it that way," Dickerson said. "And now that our players are becoming aware of what we expect, they are getting autonomy of their own."

And though it may seem odd for a coach to hand over the reigns to his players at this stage of the season, Dickerson said the confidence he has in his players allows him to do so.

"At the outset of the season I told my players that they were going to learn more than the X's and O's of the game," Dickerson said. "Our kids, if nothing else, will learn a hell of a lot about the philosophy behind the game and understand defense as well as play it."

"I feel that it is my responsibility to educate our ball players about the game," the coach said. "I would hope to teach all of them not only about the game of football but the world of athletics."

Dickerson also said his players' ability to learn quickly has allowed he and his staff to let his players call the shots.

"A lot of people think that football players are rather dense, but that's just not true," he added. "Our defensive playbook has over 500 pages to it. Hell, trigonometry books have about 300 or 350 and I never see anyone acting out trigonometry."

"This is what it's all about—watching your players do what you've taught them all season. We're excited about it and so are the players."

Moline will also televise Panthers

by Andy Savoie

WQAD-TV in Moline has become the third ABC-TV affiliate in Illinois to announce it will televise Eastern's semi-final football playoff game with North Alabama Saturday, Eastern Sports Information Director Dave Kidwell said Thursday.

Earlier this week, WRAU-TV in Peoria and WAND-TV in Decatur announced that they will televise the contest. Moline is located in northwestern Illinois.

Kidwell also said Eastern has contacted representatives for Illinois U.S. Sens. Adlai Stevenson and Charles Percy to seek their help in getting the contest televised on WLS-TV in Chicago.

"Their media liasons expressed some interest in looking into it," Kidwell said.

Eastern alumni have been calling

WLS-TV all week in an attempt to persuade the station to televise the Panther-North Alabama contest.

Wednesday, a WLS-TV representative called Eastern Alumni Director Charles Titus to request that alumni call ABC-TV in New York instead of Chicago.

The representative explained that New York executives make the decisions about which games are broadcast.

The Florida-Florida State game is currently scheduled to be televised in Chicago during Eastern's contest, which will begin at 11:25 a.m.

However, Kidwell said the call from WLS-TV just encouraged alumni to keep calling Chicago.

"Although there has not been a positive response (to the calls), there are a lot of people putting the pressure on," Kidwell said.

"They (WLS-TV) are well aware of the interest in the game, and that has encouraged us to keep trying. We're still encouraging people to call WLS," Kidwell said.

Tuesday, WLS-TV sportscaster Tim Wiegel told Kidwell there is no chance the game will be televised in Chicago.

Kidwell said Wiegel told him television executives in New York do not want the game shown in Chicago because of low ratings for the Eastern-Youngstown semi-final game two years ago.

WLS-TV made a last-minute schedule change in 1978 in order to televise Eastern's 26-22 win over Youngstown. The change was made due to the demand of Eastern alumni and fans in that area.

This Week's Highlight

Go cheer on the Panthers, by bus, plane or television

by Melinda Wilson

This weekend, the Panthers face their last hurdle in the semi-final football playoff game with the University of North Alabama.

Eastern students have a number of options for enjoying the game—by watching at local bars, dorm rooms or going to the game in Florence, Ala.

Bus and plane trip tickets to the playoff game Saturday were available Thursday at the Union.

Some students will be attending the game, via round-trip bus and plane trips sponsored by Arrow Travel in Charleston.

The plane will leave Charleston at 9 a.m. Saturday and return after the game. The bus will leave at 11 p.m. Friday and also return after the game.

Everyone traveling with the campus-sponsored trips are promised the opportunity to purchase a ticket at the game.

Fans who chose to remain in Charleston will have the option of seeing the game on television. The game will be televised over WAND TV—Channel 17 Decatur starting at 11:25 a.m. CST Saturday.

Eastern Sports Information Director Dave Kidwell commented that Eastern officials were hoping the game would be shown on a few other nearby stations, but currently Decatur, Peoria and Huntsville, Ala., are the only ABC stations scheduled to show the game.

Two years ago, WLS—TV in Chicago make an 11th-hour schedule change to cover Eastern's semi-final game against Youngstown State due to the demand of Eastern alumni and fans in that area.

Festivities do not end after the game, however, as students can greet the Panthers on their return to the Coles County Airport, expected to be at about 6 p.m.

Community theaters:

Charleston, Mattoon offer variety

by Judi Jines

There is one thing one immediately evident about people involved in community theater—they love what they are doing. Nothing else could explain the long hours they so willingly put in their craft or that unmistakable glow that comes to their eyes when they speak of “theater.”

As to the question of who gets involved in community theater, Michael Shehorn, president of the Charleston Community Theater, asserts, “We get everyone—it’s just a matter of interest.”

A number of Eastern people have been involved in the theater since its early days and continue to be involved.

The theater has been around since 1964 when Don Garner of the speech-communications department directed Charleston Community Theater’s first production, “Light Up the Sky” by Kaufman and Hart. The play was presented in the Old Bath House, which was located where the McDonald’s restaurant is now, on Lincoln Avenue.

The theater would take over the Bath House in the winter, gut the whole place out, and remove the lockers, Garner said.

Twelve townswomen sewed drapes that went around the audience’s seats, creating a theater-in-the-round atmosphere.

“In the first four or five years, there was no free seat in the house. Every seat for every play was sold out,” Garner reminisced.

“The policy in the early years was that no student could be in a play unless his family lived permanently in Charleston. They were not to have any play on campus,” Garner said.

Garner fondly recalled a Charleston Community Theater tradition: For many years a catchy tune from “Light Up the Sky”—“Another Opening, Another Show”—was played right before the play began. If there was music in the play, the familiar tune would be played before the integral music in the play.

“I still believe that community theater needs a tradition to live,” Garner said firmly.

Garner remembers the old auditions—“Every member of the board would try out. They would get five or six people to go out and bring people in to try out. In the old days we did have a lot of people interest,” he said.

“It was a community activity. In tryouts, people would show up to read, but only a quarter of them actually wanted to be in the play. Every board member would be there and every one of them would bring people,” Garner said.

Deciding on a production to undertake is “usually what the director wants to do will be done if it can be done, Harold Marker, a board member of the Charleston Community Theater, said. The board then votes on how much money can be spent on the production and other items.

Marker is not new to the theater business as he was in the first Homecoming play at Eastern—“The Trysting Place.”

Marker said plans for a play “takes a lot of time—a month to five weeks of preparation for a production—and rehearsals four nights a week.” He said that often everyone has to work around cast members who cannot make a rehearsal.

Cindi Switzer, who is currently pursuing a master’s degree at Eastern, served on the Charleston Community Theater board for one year. She started her community theater career as a junior in high school.

“When I first started,” she said, “I had one line to sing solo, and they had to put two people on it.” Switzer credited community theater with helping her to build up her confidence. Now I can belt out a song if I have to,” she said with a vigorous nod.

The theater has faced a number of problems, including unstable attendance, a “fair” financial picture and places to hold the productions.

Audience attendance is “not as good as what we’d like,” Shehorn said. “It all depends on the show. ‘Bye, Bye Birdie’ had a good showing but ‘The Gingerbread Lady’ never drew the audience it should have.”

Shehorn said ticket prices should not be a deterrent to attending the plays.

“The prices are not that high—if we thought they were, we’d lower them,” he added. Tickets prices for the Charleston Theater are comparable to Eastern’s.

“We try to break even if we can. We have good patrons. They give us a base of money to start with—we’re not in it to make money.”

The people involved in the community theater try to put on three productions a year. “Our holdup is finding a place to do them,” Shehorn said.

Mattoon audiences getting warmed up to performers

by Judi Jines

Not far away, the Mattoon Area Performing Art Society brings theater to the people, and growing support of this group is helping it to expand.

Charles Coffey, president of MAPAS, said that community support for the group is “getting better.” He admitted that at first there was a bit of a problem when MAPAS switched from having its play at the Burgess-Osborne Auditorium to Lake Land College. Coffey said that people had to get accustomed to going out to Lake Land.

“The basic board policy is to try to do three productions a year—fall, winter and spring,” Coffey said.

Coffey, also a Mattoon detective, said the group will put on a drama and a comedy in the spring.

“We’re beginning to generate a lot more interest. The biggest thing we need is manpower—people who are willing to do it. We’ve got some awfully good people around,” Coffey said.

MAPAS board member Doris Reynolds said, “We tried to stay with popular plays because the people around here attend popular plays. If we don’t have an audience, we don’t have money. Also, it’s a bad feeling to perform onstage to a handful of people.”

“People come to plays to be entertained and to forget their problems,” Reynolds continued. “You can have a play with a message but it should also be fun. We lost a lot of our audience several years ago because we had some dramas that were terribly depressing.”

Reynolds said the future of MAPAS is “real good. Especially with what been on TV, people realize that they’re not getting quality. They like the differences live theater provides them. In community theater, your friends and neighbors are on stage—it’s fun to see somebody you know in a different way.”

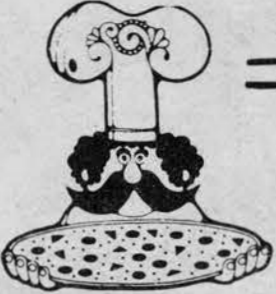

Reynolds pointed out that MAPAS has to pay grants and royalties on the plays that they perform. “We had to pay over $1,200 for ‘Fiddler on the Roof’—and we had to pay this money beforehand,” Reynolds said. “It was almost the same for ‘Oklahoma!’ Dramas and comedies are less, she added.

Timothy Pinkham, choral director for Mattoon High School, directed the recent production of “Oklahoma!” for MAPAS.

“Around here, Pinkham said, “musicals are our big money-makers. Other plays are not so well-attended.”

He said this is a shame because “people should expose themselves to things like this that they wouldn’t have been exposed to otherwise.”

One of several weathered buildings stand as a reminder of Charleston's once-bustling railroads.

Mattoon, Charleston lines have rolled on since 1851

by P. James Krueger

The long lines of the rail have been rolling along for more than 100 years in the Coles County area.

Beginning in 1851 and ending in the year 1883, five railroad lines were constructed throughout Coles County.

Spurred on by the Internal Improvements Act of 1836-1837, passenger lines were developed for Charleston and Mattoon.

Although Mattoon still has the benefit of regular train service, Charleston has been without it since 1956 when the last passenger train went through.

In 1852, not a single dwelling existed where Mattoon now stands. Because of the construction of the Illinois Central and the Terre Haute-Alton railroad lines, Mattoon, and thus Charleston came into being and thrived.

During the late 1960s, passenger service throughout the United States was virtually eliminated on all trains.

Although the decision was optional for each railroad, the Illinois Central opted to eliminate passenger service.

In 1970, probably the most spectacular bankruptcy in United States history occurred with the financial collapse of the Penn-Central Railroad, a giant $7 billion corporation with over 90,000 employees.

Currently, this railroad system is in the hands of receivers and operating at a deficit of several million dollars each year, is unable to pay its debts and in some cases cannot pay taxes.

Railroad Passenger Corporation has funded this system to operate passenger service in the United States. This railroad system, commonly referred to as Amtrak, now controls passenger service through Mattoon and this is one of the very few lines now operated in east central Illinois.

For students at Eastern who use the Mattoon Amtrak station there is no chance of service being eliminated or curtailed. An Amtrak agent in Mattoon said, "I've been working here since 1972. About three times a year rumors get started that this station will be shut down—they always turn out to be wrong."

In fact, he said just the opposite has happened—ridership in Mattoon and across the country on the whole has experienced an increase. "The Mattoon station has had an increase of 25-30 percent overlast year," the Amtrak agent added. "I believe the main reason is because of the gas crisis."

Although railroads may never again be the giants they were in the past, there is hope that the renaissance they are now experiencing is a sign of the times, and for the future.

'My Bodyguard' bullies with childhood lives

Flicks
Review

by Scott Fishel

There's one in every school—a bully who turns out to be a wimp when someone steps on his toes. He's a dazzler, a con man, a master of charm and an expert at deceit.

But when one guy decides he doesn't want to play along with the game, when he sees through this marshmallow-hard guy, that's when the real action begins.

In "My Bodyguard," that is exactly what happens. After watching this simple but touching story you come away from the theater feeling like you could face the toughest obstacles without fear of defeat. The barrier doesn't have to be a tall, bulky figure with fists like pistons, either. Anything in the way seems conquerable.

"My "Bodyguard" is both comical and serious. It overflows with undeniable truth about the nature of kids and adults alike. There is just the right touch of innocence and fantasy blended in to make the story realistic.

It's refreshing to see a movie of this nature when all around there are depressing themes that leave you with no conclusions. Here we see the classic struggle between good and evil (of course), that is sometimes hard to discern in other films. And the subtle touch in creating distinguishable characters is superb.

The villain of the story is the nasal-voiced, cocky brat named Moody (Matt Dillon) who forces his classmates to pay him a dollar a day for "protection" from Ricky Linderman (Adam Baldwin), an introverted young man who lives in the shadow of his brother's accidental death.

But the new kid in town, Clifford Peache (Chris Makepeace) doesn't buy this small-time extortion racket. Instead he befriends Linderman in order to stave off Moody's scare tactics.

Makepeace's performance as the shy, anemic-looking kid is well-executed. Brilliant, I believe, would be an overstatement, but this young man definitely has the potential to move up. The character of Peache is subtle and uncertain—a true portrait of a boy of his age.

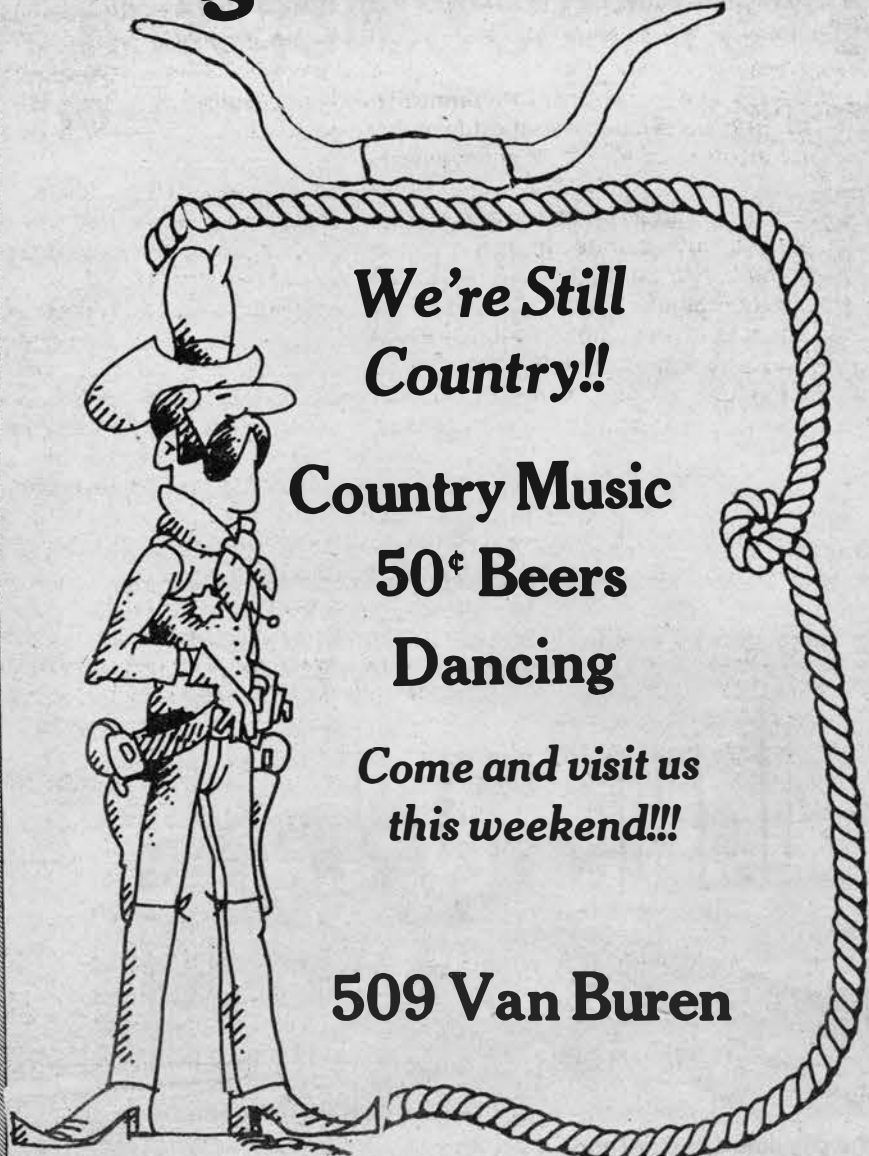

However Baldwin is the real star of the show. He is the character that changes and triumphs in the end. There's nothing artificial about him. That's why he receives a round of applause from the audience when he finally lashes at the pain that tears at his conscience.

Special appearances by comedian Martin Mull as Peache's father and the distinguished John Houseman as a hotel tycoon are incidental. They only serve to create the background noise needed to shape the origins of the central characters.

The scene is Chicago and the lesson is growing up, something we could all use a lesson in at times. Although most of the main ingredients of the movie are in their early teens, "My Bodyguard" is not a kid's show. It will leave an impression on all who view it.

Olga remains favorite, stays a 'heavy eater'

BROOKFIELD, Ill.—Olga is up for adoption again and the line forms on the right.

Olga is one of Brookfield Zoo's star attractions, and its heaviest eater. The 19 and-a-half year old, one-ton walrus goes through 60 pounds of mackerel and herring daily, and her yearly feed bill is $13,000.

In the past year, Olga had 1,600 zoo "parents" who paid a minimum of $15 each for the privilege.

Any money left over from her food bill goes for her care and up keep of her living quarters. Her keepers say she is the oldest Atlantic walrus in captivity in the United States.

Many other animals at the zoo have been adopted in a program of helping defray food costs. But Olga, with her bristly, white whiskers and her peek-a-boo ways in her outdoor pool, always gets the most "parents."

Clams and squid used to supplant her diet, but became too costly. Only on special occasions does she get a bucket of them.

Olga and her pool mate, 30-year-old Amy, a harbor seal, swim and frolic all winter in the semi-heated water. Olga never gets cold no matter how low the temperature dips. Some of her blubber is seven inches thick.

Wisconsin has to pay for its own 'oversight'

MADISON, Wis.—A little-noticed state bureau has decided to start blowing its own horn a bit louder, and it's costing taxpayers $7,500.

Gail Swanson, head of the Administrative Department's bureau of information development, describes the expenditure as "some modest marketing work" to bring her office to the attention of other state agencies.

The bureau, created in 1979 to help state agencies develop computer and related information systems, has 31 employees. Swanson says her office can save the state money because it provides this service more cheaply than private firms.

The marketing effort includes a 16-page brochure, developed and written by two University of Wisconsin graduate students who were paid $5,500. An artist got $1,000 for designing a logotype and the brochure's layout.

The state will pay about $700 for 1,500 copies of the brochure.

Oh deer! Officials turn to lions for help

PITTSBURGH—Airport authorities, fed up with having airplanes run into wandering deer at the Greater Pittsburgh International Airport, may turn to the King of the Beasts for a solution.

They've committed $180,000 to construct 27,000 feet of fence around the airport's 11,000 acre reservation, but if that doesn't work, they're spreading lion manure near the runways.

The theory is that the deer will be repelled by the scent of a predator, said David L. Donahoe, director of the Allegheny County Aviation Department.

But Highland Park Zoo Director Howard Hays thinks the only thing the lion droppings will do is get the deer's hooves dirty.

"In our past experiences it hasn't worked. But they're certainly welcome to all we have," he said.

Donahoe said animals on the runways have always been a problem because of the airport's rural location. In the past three weeks, two landing airplanes hit deer, although no serious damage or injuries were reported.

The aviation director says the lion manure idea is only one option. Cutting down trees around the airfield is another, he said.

In any case, Hays isn't sure the zoo's 30 big cats would be up to the task of supplying the airport's needs, since they leave only 30 to 50 pounds of droppings a day.

Station cuts into game recalls 'Heidi' incident

SALT LAKE CITY—With just over a minute to play and ninth-ranked Oklahoma nudging fourth-ranked Nebraska's goal line, Salt Lake's KTVX switched away from the ABC network to show a local college football game—much to the dismay of some viewers.

Five hours later irate calls still were coming into the station, renewing memories of the "Heidi" incident in 1968 that made NBC vow never again to switch away from a live football game.

Saturday night, KTVX switched away to broadcast the Brigham Young-Utah game, just before Oklahoma scored a winning touchdown to pull ahead of Nebraska 21-17.

Twelve years ago, NBC cut away from an American football conference game between the New York Jets and the Oakland Raiders to show the movie "Heidi." The jets were leading 32-29 with 1:05 left. The Raiders scored twice in the final 42 seconds and won the game 43-32.

A long 'family affair' makes it all relative

LONDON—When Bill Baker, 76, married his granddaughter's husband's mother, Edna Harvey, the whole family had to sit down and try to figure out who was who.

Baker's granddaughter, Lynn, 28, put it this way: "My mother-in-law is now my step-grandmother.

My grandfather is my step-father-in-law. My mum is my sister-in-law and my brother is my nephew.

"But even more disconcerting is that I'm married to my uncle and my own children are my cousins."
